Claims 10-12, 18, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 10-12, the phrase "preferably" is vague and indefinite.

In claim 18, it's unclear which tank is referred to.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9, 13, 14, 16-19, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 94/20802 (Bossinger et al) in view of CN 2461939 and CN 1309820. Bossinger et al discloses a portable wind turbine transportable housing. The reference 1 (DI: WO 94/20802 A1) also discloses a mobile power station, and it has disclosed the following technical features: the mobile power station comprises a wind-energy power system 8 comprised of a rotor blade 81 and a wind-energy generator 9; a solar cell panel 25 containing solar cells 6, storage means 4 for storing electrical energy and delivery means 41 for delivering electrical energy, wherein the wind-energy power system and the solar panel, respectively, are connected to the storage means for supplying electrical energy, respectively, to said storage means (see abstract, page 1, lines 6-11, page 2, line 16 to page 3, line 5, page 5, lines 15-26, page 7, lines 6-37, page 8, lines 13-16, page 15, lines 27-34, and Figures 1-6). Bossinger et al does not disclose "the storage means comprise a battery and a hydrogen system, and wherein the hydrogen system comprises a hydrogen generator, a hydrogen tank, actively connected to the hydrogen generator, for storing hydrogen produced using the hydrogen generator, and a hydrogen cell, actively connected to the hydrogen tank, for generating electrical energy by combustion of hydrogen". CN 2461939 discloses an energy collecting and converting device to prepare hydrogen by electrolyzing process, the device comprises a hydrogen generation apparatus and a collecting and storing apparatus connected with each other, so that the hydrogen is used for storage and application as energy (see the abstract). CN 13098201 discloses a fuel cell for production of electrical energy, which takes hydrogen as fuel and generates electrical energy by means of oxidation of hydrogen (see the abstract and Figure 1). It would have been obvious to modify the system in Bossinger to have the storage with battery and hydrogen system as taught by CN 2461939 for the purpose of storing energy and hydrogen, and to use a fuel cell using hydrogen as fuel as taught by CN 1309820 for the purpose of generating more electricity. Regarding claim 19, it would have been obvious to provide a vent in Bossinger et al for the purpose of venting the pressure.

Claims 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 94/20802 (Bossinger et al) in view of CN 2461939, CN 1309820 and DE 9321520. Bossinger et al as modified discloses all the claimed subject matter as set forth above in the rejection of claim 9, but does not disclose a filter system with membrane type. DE 9321520 discloses a system using a filter system F1, F2, in a power plant in order to eliminate contaminants. It would have been obvious to modify the system in Bossinger to have the filter means as taught by DE 9321520 for the purpose of eliminating contaminants.

Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 94/20802 (Bossinger et al) in view of CN 2461939, CN 1309820 and DE 375,498. Bossinger et al as modified discloses all the claimed subject matter as set forth above in the rejection of claim 9, but does not disclose a frame with extendable support. DE 375,498 discloses a system using a frame p with extendable support y. It would have been obvious to modify the system in Bossinger to have the frame with extendable support as taught by DE 375498 for the purpose of being able to adjust the position of the power plant.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Caci et al, Johnson et al, Jacobi et al, disclose portable solar power plants.
